FO TIME OF DEATH ASSESSMENT CASE PRESENTATIONS

17-06-2023

Forensic pathologists are essentially required to estimate the time since death to assist in death investigation by limiting the investigation period and thus helping narrow down the number of suspects in homicide cases. Estimation of time since death is an integral part of medico legal investigations. The time of death is most frequently estimated using the classical triad of post-mortem changes – rigor mortis, livor mortis and algor mortis.

A fun activity based short group learning system was designed among Postgraduate students, to make the students learn various Forensic Odontology disciplines. Postgraduate Students were divided into small teams. Each team were asked to browse different Forensic Cases from the internet, where the time of death was assessed using different mortis. Finally, each team did a chart presentation about their findings.

By this fun activity based short group learning methods, Students get more enthusiastic in learning this topic which by itself is very difficult to understand. Students also felt this way of learning the difficult topic in a fun way makes them easy to concentrate and understand more.

ESCAPISM

Starry night, glistening sunrise, into awake and dawn of sky
Lost in wind, looking in, a pause from the storms outside.
Smell of coffee , wet earth, old books and stories I never lived Reminds me i have world to escape, a journey of turning in.

Till the brim if i could fill with medals and all things fancy,
Everything that I could touch and hang in the balcony,
Will it be peaceful enough to make me feel the symphony,
Will it be passionate enough to make the walking life dreamy.

Anything else after the routine of the day,
That fills the cup of your heart till today.
Where you are lost and found right way
Or watch the art and wonder the play.

you eventually put the crazy ride on brake
Cause portrait is blank without that escape.
Maybe we were never made to be alive but rather feel what it means to be,

In the trail of thoughts ,slow dancing, when it's raining,
When all noises fade and you can finally feel something.
Then let yourself into the cabin and let all controls swing
The only way we can make this epic is by escaping.

Same old lullabies, movies, fantasies and comics of ghibli,
On the streets and libraries, downtown city has a legacy,
Vintage cafe, suburban station, train to outskirts of cities,
we could go from painting to diving , or all night star gazing,
The only way we are surviving this hell of a ride, is by escaping.
